Muslim communities may be found in almost all major cities and many mid-sized jurisdictions-- and even if there is not an established Muslim community living in a particular area, officers are more than likely to come in contact with a person of Muslim faith while performing their duties.

The more knowledge officers have about the religion of Islam, people of the Muslim faith, and Muslim communities, the more effective they will be at establishing and maintaining positive relations while also ensuring the safety of all citizens and law enforcement.

The video program offers three viewing options:

1. Play video in its entirety (98 min.)
2. Select among seven training segments:
 - Introduction (13 min.)
 - Call for Service at the Mosque (25 min.)
 - Domestic Violence and Medical Call (16 min.)
 - Search and Seizure (15 min.)
 - Suspicious Activity (13 min.)
 - Traffic Stop (11 min.)
 - Final Thoughts (4 min.)
3. Select among five video interactions (brief scenarios for discussion):
 - Call for Service at the Mosque (2 min.)
 - Domestic Violence and Medical Call (2 min.)
 - Search and Seizure (2 min.)
 - Suspicious Activity (2 min.)
 - Traffic Stop (1 min.)

This video program is part of the POST Homeland Security training series and is presented in the traditional DVD menu format; the DVD does not offer the new "Group Facilitated" and "Individual" viewing modes nor printable documents. This video is also available online at the POST Learning Portal.
